of Achievement

Marking a Quarter-Century of Achievement

THE Moore Fountain Pen celebrates this year its twenty-fifth anniversary. When in 1900 a few machines were set up in a small room on Boylston Street, Boston, and some half-dozen skilled mechanics started making the new fountain pen, little did it appear that here was being laid the foundation of a business destined to revolutionize the fountain pen industry and extend around the world.

Yet such was the case, for the Moore Pen with its radical departure of withdrawing point and screw-on cap—the first absolutely non-leakable fountain pen—speedily proved such a great improvement over any other fountain pen then on the market that its sales spread from coast to coast and into all civilized countries.

And just as the advent of the Moore marked a tremendous advance in fountain pen construction, so down through the past quarter-century the Moore has led the way in the path of sound scientific progress. Today, in addition to the original non-leakable model, the Moore line includes a series of perfected lever self-filling pens of the most improved type, a new mechanical pencil representing the last word in scientific construction, fountain pen inks, clips, ribbons, chains, beads, and the famous Moore-Miller gold pen nibs.

The Moore gold points have always been famous for superior excellence, and to maintain their superiority we have installed our own pen-making department, equipped with the latest and most improved machinery, manned by master craftsmen, and supervised by Mr. Thomas P. Miller, a genius in gold pen making of national reputation.

We wish to call your attention to the many new numbers in this catalogue. Note especially the handsome maroon and black "Tuscan" models on page 3, which many consider the most beautiful fountain pens ever made; the "Luxors" on Page 2; the "Acmes" on Page 5; the new "Colonial" models on Pages 5, 6 and 7; and the new pen and pencil sets on Pages 15 to 19.

We believe that close inspection of the following pages will convince you that never has a line of fountain pens and pencils so outstanding in quality, so powerful in selling appeal, been offered to the public.

The "Monarch" is the largest pen in the Moore line and has the greatest ink capacity. Its special powerful point is so strongly made that it will make several carbon copies and stand the severest tests of hard use that can be given a fountain pen.

Despite its size, the "Monarch" is so perfectly balanced and proportioned that using it is a pleasure. It is made with either smooth-polished ebony finish or richly chased, as shown, mounted with gold band and clip. Lever self-filling.

The "Monarch's" cap is tipped with either jade-green or plain black, as desired.

The "Major" is designed for those who desire the "Monarch's" remarkable durability and superior writing qualities in a somewhat smaller, lighter pen. It has a strong special point, comes either chased or plain, and is mounted with gold band and clip. Lever self-filling.

The "Major" has either a crimson-tipped cap or plain black, as desired.

The Moore "Acme" and "Colonial" Pens

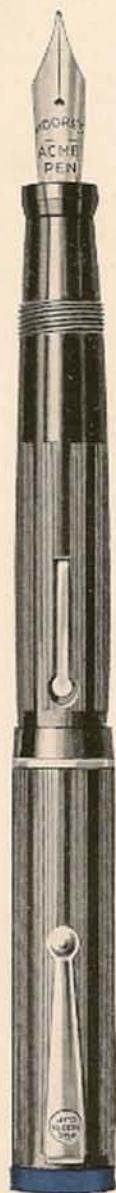

Actual Size

The "Acme"

Here is exceptional pen value at a very moderate price. The "Acme" has large ink capacity, a special gold pen good for extra hard use, and a utility gold band preventing cap breakage. Beautifully chased in Ribbon Design, with distinctive blue tip on cap or black, if preferred. In beauty and writing qualities the "Acme" does full justice to its name.

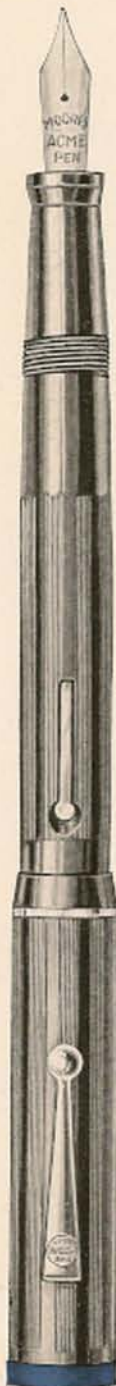

The "Colonial" — Ribbon Design

The beautifully finished barrels of Moore's "Colonials" have an ebony-like lustre and the gold bands add smartness and distinction. Lever self-filling.

THE MOORE CLIPS

12 MOORE CLIPS IN VELVET-LINED DISPLAY BOX

A HANDSOME DISPLAY OF AN EXCEPTIONAL CLIP

Attached securely to the cap of the pen, the Moore Clips will not work loose but hold the pen firmly in the pocket and have no springs or catches to tear the cloth, get out of order, or make the removal of the pen difficult. These clips also solve the question of emblems, since we make them up not only plain but with every standard emblem in an attractive design, not too large and yet not too small. These emblem clips make of every fountain pen an emblem pen, and at the same time do not add a prohibitive amount to the cost.
